Governors' Committee Passes Plans For New Student Centre

136 Firms Chase 4000 Plumbers

TORONTO, (CUP) — The representatives of 136 Canadian and Foreign companies converged on the University of Toronto campus last week in a co-ordinated search for new employees. All told, over four thousand interviews were held with fourth year and graduate students in Engineering and Science.

Engineering lectures were cancelled, and the classrooms were used by the canvassers. This plan, conceived two years ago, is considered a great improvement over past processes. In the past, classrooms were half-empty whenever a particular company was interviewing, and much more lecture time was lost.

McGill initiated the same program shortly after the University of Toronto, and over 100 companies took part this year.

The key to the new program is the emphasis on student research into the various companies. University Placement Bureau obtain all the available data on the companies and place it at the disposal of the student. When the time comes to apply for interviews, the students are aware of which companies they are most interested in, and the entire procedure is simplified.

Under this system, employers need not fear that rival organizations have reached the top students first. They are also not in a position to be strung along by a student waiting for a better offer. On the other hand, the student also benefits, for he can survey the entire field and choose the company best suited to his needs and qualifications.

I'd Like To Buy An Annual

This pretty girl surveying all the different annuals is not a permanent fixture in the Annual Office; so if you rush down to buy your "Old McGill '60", don't expect to find her there. The annual, however, will be sold until this Friday.

Plans for McGill's new student centre have been passed by the Board of Governors' New Union Committee. Now only one obstacle remains in the path of the building-acceptance by the Executive Committee of the Board of Governors.

The plans in question were drawn up by the Students' Committee, headed by Stuart Smith, a second year medical student. In consultation with the architectural firm of Lawson, Betts, and Cuth. If the Board of Governors approves them in their meeting of Feb. 8 tenders for the actual construction can be called for at once.

FINANCING

With regard to financing the project, Smith said that the Students' Committee feels that the money will come from the Federal grants which we seem to be on the verge of receiving. The Governors have previously stated that the new students' centre project was to receive top priority.

Speaking of this particular plan Smith said, "We have been waiting thirty long years for this set of plans... I see no reason why it shouldn't be one hundred percent acceptable." Smith went on to point out that once building was started the new Union would be completed within nine months.

PROPOSED SITE

The site of the building will be the south east corner of Milton and University streets. This location was approved by the Board of Governors last fall. The proposed Union is a four story structure covering about 20,000 square feet. It will contain all the features of the present Union on a larger and much more modern scale. It will also have improved washroom facilities, a soundproof rehearsal room, and music, reading, and sitting lounges.

The person who is mainly responsible for the progress towards the new Union is Mr. Smith. He took charge of the reorganized New Union Committee in the fall of 1958 and has been instrumental in bringing it as far as it has gone. Commenting on this, Bryce Weir, President of the Students' Society said, "On behalf of the Students' Society, I would like to express publicly our appreciation of Stuart Smith's untiring and effective work as chairman of the New Union Committee."

University Model U. N. Assembles

The second University Model United Nations will be held in Montreal this year, from February 3 to February 6. Over fifty universities will be represented, with the discussions including the topic of China's entry into the UN and other pertinent material.

The UNUN was conceived last year by a group of Montreal students who felt the acute need of a well-informed body of students who could step into the world as able leaders. It was the largest project of its kind in North America.

Last year's meeting was attended by over 200 delegates, each from a university whose country was represented in the UN. Patrons of that meeting were Canada's late Minister of External Affairs, Sidney Smith, Prime Minister Diefenbaker, The Hon. Lester B. Pearson and Senator Theodore Green of the United States. Embassy staffs of the various countries were here from Ottawa to advise their delegates.

EMPHASIS ON REALISM

This year the emphasis will be placed on further realism. Delegates will hear speeches by well-known international figures and meet them personally. There will be panel discussion and set meetings to instruct the delegates as to the inner workings of the UN and the ways in which it handles the various problems that arise daily. There will be a General Assembly, a Security Council and an Economic and Social Council where crucial problems will be discussed.

DELEGATIONS

Representing Canada will be delegates from McMaster, Toronto, McGill, Western Ontario, Sir George, Loyola, Montreal and possibly British Columbia and Manitoba. Among those representing the United States will be delegates from the University of California, West Point, Lafayette and The University of New York.

This year's chairman will be Jean Dupriez, a law student at the University of Montreal. At the conclusion of the meeting, a dinner and gala ball will be given the four Montreal Universities.

On the following day, the first meeting of the Student United Nations Association in Canada will be held, with plans being laid for the groundwork of the Association, which would act as the co-ordinator of all the international relations clubs across the country. Many projects, further investigating the agencies and working of the UN, are in the planning stage of the Association.

Debaters Take Two From Bishop's

by BRUCE STOVEL

Two teams of McGill debaters won in two contests held by the Inter University Debating League last night between McGill and Bishop's University.

At McGill, Leslie Malcovitch and Gordon Echenberg successfully took the negative side of the proposal: "Resolved that the Canadian Government should take steps to curb the growing power of labour unions."

At the same time, J.J. Elkin and Irwin Cotler upheld the affirmative of the same topic at Bishop's. This was the first win for McGill in an Inter University Debating League contest at Bishop's for many years, and the two McGill debaters there were awarded a perfect score.

X-Rays

Registration for X-Rays for second, third and fourth year Commerce students will take place Wednesday morning at Purvis Hall.

In the debate at Bishop's, Cotler opened McGill's argument by stressing the point that unions should be illegal because they deprive a man of his rights to choose his associates and to choose his employer.

Greater power of unions in negotiations forces the management side to concede wage increases which have a destructive inflationary effect, claimed Elkin, who wound up McGill's case. The McGill debaters received 100 of a possible 100 points, and thus took the debate by a unanimous decision.

AT MCGILL

At McGill, the team of Malcovitch and Echenberg was opposed by Doug Brown and Paul Jones, who took the affirmative side. The debate was chaired by Peter White of the McGill Debating Union, and began with the first speaker for the affirmative side, Doug Brown.

He began by defining the resolution, and then traced the history of labour unions in Canada. He followed this by stating that the power of unions is now growing, and must be checked by the Canadian Government to prevent the spiral curve of inflation ruining the Canadian economy. He maintained that Canada must use her labour pool wisely to keep her position in the "economic cold war."

Leslie Malcovitch, a fourth-year Science student, countered by stating that the growth of unions was not out of proportion with the whole Canadian economy. He added that strikes are the only weapons unions have to gain a just share of higher profits. He also said that unions are adequately controlled by the existing law made in 1948, and added that statistics show the unions are declining now as the working force shifts from "blue-collar" to "white-collar" workers.

The second speaker for Bishop's, Paul Jones, stressed the growing unity of labour unions as shown by the formation of the Canadian Labour Congress five years ago. He proposed a new bill which would remove American control of Canadian unions, forbid "featherbedding", and place a price ceiling on products.

ECHENBERG CLOSES

Gordon Echenberg closed the case for McGill by showing the impracticality of the affirmative's bill, and presented another authoritative theory which says that the unions are not the cause of inflation, but only one means of bringing it about.

VICTORIES AT U. OF T.

Other McGill debaters, Stuart Smith and Brahm Campbell, won a double victory at Toronto on January 22 defeating Osgood Hall and Harthouse.

They upheld the negative of the topic "Resolved that The United Kingdom is pushing the colonies to independence too quickly".

Answering Osgood Hall's charge of political immaturity in the colonies, Campbell and Smith pointed out that Britain has done nothing to improve the situation during last half-century. The natives would be better off under any kind of government than under the present situation in which they have virtually no vote. They added that the longer Britain remains in, the greater the possibility of extremist elements taking control when a government finally is formed.

Harthouse emphasized that colonies economics were not viable. In reply, the McGill team showed that any financial help Britain wanted to give could continue after independence through colonial grants.

Au Revoir

Professor E.W. Kierans is leaving McGill to become President of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges. Prof. Kierans came to McGill in 1953 as a professor of Economics and Political Science, and in the same year was appointed Director of the School of Commerce.

Since coming to the School, Professor Kierans has done much to improve the curriculum, calibre and reputation of the School of Commerce. He has done this by imposing the compulsory humanities continuation, broadening the curriculum, and by eliminating haphazard choice of courses. In other words, Professor Kierans has incorporated the essential values of the liberal tradition in the program of the Commerce student.

Professor Kierans has a challenging task ahead of him. He will accept his responsibilities with the same zest as he showed so very well in his administration of the School of Commerce. He brings to the Exchanges a breadth of interest as exemplified in both his business and professional activities, and a fine appreciation of national and international developments on the political and economic scene.

We wish Professor Kierans every success in his new undertaking. We can only sum up the feelings of the Professor in his own words, "When has any age required a greater maturity of thought and action from young men and women? There is for each one of us — a challenge, somewhere."

We, as students, are sorry to lose the services of a fine teacher but we are pleased to note that Professor Kierans plans to maintain his close association with the School of Commerce and McGill by remaining a member of the Commerce Advisory Council.

Sense About Censorship

TIME, the weekly news magazine, has a new feather in its cap. Last week the Juvenile Morality Squad under Det.-Lt. Lucien Quintal seized copies of an issue of the publication on charges of violating municipal by-laws re nude or semi-nude pictures. It was the same law-enforcement officer who, last year, ordered "Les Ballets Africains" appearing at Her Majesty's Theatre to cover up some exposed portions of their anatomies.

The magazine concerned has an article dealing with the world's overpopulation problem — of no mean interest if we realize that thousands of babies have been born in the short time taken to read this editorial. To illustrate the article, TIME portrayed on the cover a painting which included a semi-nude African woman. And this sight raised the ire of the police officers.

No one denies that there are many scandalous publications whose sole object can be expressed in a three-letter word. But surely, whatever else may be said of Time Magazine, it does not, and has never, fallen into that category. Such censorship must be used with the utmost discretion or the freedom of the press, about which we so loftily speak, is in grave danger.

Letters to the Editor

Times to Start Firing, Hiring

Sir:

Congratulations to Henry Mintzberg. His comments blasted the athletic situation perfectly.

Two years ago, seven persons on the athletic staff resigned because they were not satisfied with their salaries. I was told that they were all flatly refused any increase. A few of them remained as coaches, but not being on the full time staff, their efficiency was cut down.

I am one of the athletes on an intercollegiate team who feels that the coach is not well enough qualified. This is no reflection on him personally. I know some athletes who do not take part because of the low coaching calibre. I have seen favoritism in sports where athletes participate individually. I personally have been asked to participate on the varsity level because the person due to take part "couldn't make it".

As Mr. Mintzberg says, start firing and start hiring, good athletes don't play for poor coaches.

Sir:

We would like to thank the Daily for giving the students notice of the second annual Sales Campaign. Space limitation however precluded the Daily from publishing all the important facts and figures. In this letter we would like to comment especially on figures. They come in all sizes in the Annual this year — something for everybody. Facial figures are the most prominent and although there are many, we regret sincerely that everybody will not see himself in it. However we can guarantee that if you look to your friend on the left and look to your friend on the right, one of you will be in.

Dancing Course Arranged Again

Once again, all interested students will be able to take advantage of the dance lessons being co-sponsored by the Women's Union and the Student's Union. Mildred Barry has been lined up again as the instructor for the lessons which will feature modern routines of the cha-cha and rumba, as well as the traditional fox-trot and waltz.

The classes are scheduled to begin on Tuesday, February 2, and will continue through eight sessions of two hours each. There is a nominal fee of $10 being charged for the entire course.

Applications for the course may be obtained in the SEC office, and those who are interested should apply immediately, as the class is being limited to thirty people. If any extras apply they might have to take the course at a less favourable time, such as Thursday night from 7-9 pm or Tuesday night from 9-11 pm. The sponsors of the program feel that the smaller classes will enable the instructor to give more individual attention and therefore better instruction.

The classes as well as being instructional have proven to be an excellent social gathering for foreign students. If enough people are interested, an advanced dancing course may be organized, with those who took part in the earlier lessons participating.

Redmen Host Georgians In Vital Basketball Tilt

by PHIL SINGER

The Redmen basketballers meet the high-flying Georgians tonight at the Sir Arthur Currie gym in their most important game of the season. The contest is a regularly scheduled Montreal Basketball League tilt and it will start at 8 p.m.

The Red and White cagers have one three out of the four MBL games they have played. They beat the Loyola Warriors twice, and the University of Montreal once. The only game they dropped was against the same team that they meet tonight. The score in that contest was 61-58.

The Georgians are the MBL leaders, having won all their games to date. The Redmen came closest to beating them in the teams' last meeting and may well upset the SGWU boys' appellation tonight.

SHOWING WELL

Over the last weekend Gary Ulrich was the big gun for McGill. He picked up 21 points against Toronto and 19 in the McMaster game. George Miechowsky, John Newsom, Tom Richards, and Morris Limonchik have also been performing well. John Moore did not see much action on the weekend road trip, but will take a regular turn on the floor tonight.

The last three games the Redmen have played were in the Intercollegiate League. Although they have yet to break into the win column in that loop, they have been playing well, and with any breaks, they may have been victorious on at least two occasions.

"Tevya and His Daughters" Nears Initial Performance

Lee Feldman, both of whom have had extensive theatrical experience. Feinberg was associated with the Civic Little Theatre in Allentown, Pennsylvania, while Feldman recently performed in a film produced by the National Film Board.

The play is being directed by the internationally famous Chayele Grober, whose interpretation of Sholom Aleichem's stories are in line with the author's intentions. The plot concerns Tevya, a pre-revolutionary Russian dairyman, and his seven high spirited daughters. In his attempts to marry them off to the "right man", Tevya runs into some very humorous and touching situations which produces the central action of the play.

This particular script, which was adapted from Sholom Aleichem's "Tevya the Dairyman" by Arnold Pearl, was recently performed on Broadway to wide acclaim.

Co-producers Janice Greenberg and Steve Abrahams are adding the final touches prior to the opening, which takes place this Thursday at the Van Horne Auditorium. Tickets are on sale at Hillet Foundation and in the Arts Building for $1.50.

THE RVC POOL

One of the main objectives of the RVC swimming pool is to bring resident and non-resident students together in a social atmosphere. Unfortunately, this very reasonable aim is far from being fulfilled. The vast majority of students using the pool are the RVC students who, through no fault of their own, are making their "home" a cozier, and more equipped one.

RVC, instead of becoming more of a college as is purported to be, is becoming more of a residence. Unless the non-residents utilize the facilities provided for them, which includes the pool, the gap will further widen between the out of town students and Montreal girls.

Memo to all non-resident students: There is a pool for you, for your use and your enjoyment. It was built for all females on campus and that includes you. Hours for recreational swimming have been posted on the RVC Notice Board and will be announced in the McGill Daily. Free instruction is available to all swimmers and non-swimmers. We hope that an hour spent in the smoky corridor of the library could be replaced by an hour in the fresh water where relaxation, physical conditioning and friendship is attained.

BADMINTON TEAM PLAYS

McGill plays host to Palestre National in a Murray League Tourney at 7:30 pm in the Currie gym.

To date, McGill has participated in one meet against the MAAA which saw them gain little success. Sheila Dalfen and coach Toni Proyer will participate in the singles, while Bertha Kalifon and Helen Rosenbloom are scheduled to see action in the doubles. The Men's Badminton Club is entering competitors in the league, as well.

Coach Tony Proyer has announced the members of this year's intercollegiate team, which will represent McGill in the intercollegiate meet at Toronto next weekend.

Nancy Anglin and Nancy Hankin will compete in the singles matches. Anglin is the intramural champ while Hankin, a versatile athlete, recently competed in the provincial synchronized swim meet. Bertha Kalifon and Helen Rosenbloom were recently teamed up as a pair, and to date appear to play well together. Tonight should be the real test.

HOCKEY PLAYOFFS

Arts-Science and Physio face off today at 1 pm to determine the intramural hockey champion. The two teams in this sudden death playoff represent the top teams in League A and B.

Over the term's play, Arts-Science accumulated a maximum of 6 points, followed by the Thetas with 4 in League B. The other league saw Physio place first place with 4 points followed by KKG and AG tied for second place with 3 points.

Scheduled to see action for Arts-Science is Ella May Bradley, Marilyn Miller, Louise Forbes, Weny MacLaren, Cathy Harvie and Linda L'Aventure. Out to uphold the Physio squad is Connie Bates, Joan Maw, Bran Druder and Joy McKinnon.

An intercollegiate team will start practices twice a week, Tuesday 1-2 pm and Friday 5-6 pm in order to tune up for some games against Macdonald College.

Applications are now being received for the WAA Ski House in Ste Adele en Haut. Sign up in the Physical Education Office before Thursday for the weekend... The Ski Day in Summit Sauvage had to be cancelled due to lack of interest. All those that have paid the registration fee are asked to get their money back at the Phys. Ed. Office... Pleasant thought: That the dancers in the Red and White Revue participate in the WAA Modern Dance Concert in February... The Rifle Club has resumed meetings again on Thursdays, from 7:30 pm in the Rifle Range... This Thursday, January 28 at the basketball practice, elections for next year's President of the Basketball Club will be held. Picture will be taken, as well, of the Junior and Senior squads. In other basketball action, McGill played at Sir George Williams College, but no score was available at press time. The Juniors are only several points out of first place...

Marlinettes Stroke To Second In Fancy Meet

by BERTHA KALIFON

Pauline McCullagh, perennial diving and synchronized swimming star, captured two second places in the synchronized swimming meets held over the weekend. Friday night, at Palestre-Nationale, McCullagh glided into second spot in the basic routines, with 48 points, 7.2 markers behind Barbara Monaghan, the Canadian champion and winner of the singles. McCullagh's best figure was the Porpoise — it was awarded a high 6.7 score by the judges.

In the duets Nancy Hankin and Janet Savage ranked third with 46.8 points, 5.8 short of the newly formed Notre Dame Centre pair, Francine Nault and Nicole Drouin. Top honours in the duets went to Barbara Malenfant, ex-Canadian champ, and Barbara Lamontagne both of the Quebec YWCA. Their performance, "Dance of the Moon Festival", was repeated Saturday afternoon and the results were identical. In the two days, this team scored a remarkable 79.6 and 82 points. However reward should not be bestowed to the winners only. McGill's entry performed a commendable feat Friday afternoon as Nancy Hankin, a last minute volunteer for the duet, learned the entire routine

"Beatnik" in three hours.

Saturday afternoon Pauline McCullagh stroked her way to second place in the solo event of the Twin and Ashworth Trophy. McCullagh glittering in her white suit, splashed with sequins, eased through her routine "Prismatic Refractions" with the control and finesse of a true performer. The top honours went to Sandra Marks with 76.2 points, of the Quebec "Y", whose routine, "Portrait of Anne Frank" captivated the audience.

In the group event, the Quebec contingent nabbed the Ashworth Trophy with a remarkable 82 points

The team of five, including the Misses Monaghan, Malenfant, Lamontagne, and Marks sleeked through the water in perfect unison.
